Collaborating in leadership success

LEAD Advisory Group focuses on developing high potential individuals, emerging leaders and maximizing team performance. We specialize in developing and delivering programming to address employee leadership development needs in higher education; colleges, universities, divisional and departmental teams.

The Mid-Level Leadership Series focuses on building the participant's toolkit to enhance his or her developing leadership capabilities. By examining successful approaches to key higher education management and leadership challenges, participants can increase their knowledge and skills, and develop greater confidence in their leadership practice.

Seven (7) month cohort model with an integrated blend of leadership topics, self-assessment activities, small group discussions, coaching, interactive exercises and peer learning. A key learning objective of this program is for each participant to identify a professional leadership challenge related to a current on-the-job business issue. Throughout the program, participants use course content, collegial support and professional coaching to guide them through the process of developing a personal action plan to address his/her challenge. The program culminates with each participant having the opportunity to formally present their action plan to the group.

Leadership Development that delivers...client comments

From Director of Talent Development at Bridgewater State University: “Christine Tetreault and Chris Sullivan are two outstanding human resources professionals that offer high-quality delivery and best practice content sessions. From the initial discussions they assessed our needs, tailored programs to our audience and provided feedback and assessment. Their programs are always well planned, organized, and engaging... the true testimony to their great work is the feedback from our employees. The sessions are consistently rated as excellent.”

From Past Participants:

“I enjoyed the thought provoking and interactive activities. The program was informative and engaging, it forced us out of our comfort zones.”

“Before coming to the LEAD program, I was unsure of where to focus next or how I might execute on a new networking plan. Through enlightening discussions with other successful professionals, I left with a solid action plan, and more importantly, the self-assurance I needed take the next step in my career.”

“The leadership challenge success groups really are helpful, though intimidating to start. I benefited from discussing everyone’s challenges, it put into perspective that my challenge isn’t insurmountable.”
